Due to subsequent adjustments at the individual target fund level, the previously reported annual figures for the previous years 2003-2023 differ from the data presented here. In this context, we would like to point out that after the end of a performance period and after the performance of the overall portfolio has been determined, the fund management companies sometimes make retroactive adjustments to funds allocated in the portfolio. These adjustments are generally intangible, as they only amount to a few tenths or even hundredths per fund and year. Previously, we always reported the performance determined immediately after the end of the performance period. For technical reasons, we are forced to change this and in the future report the performance of the portfolios including the retroactive adjustments.
